The hell of war, and especially that hell of annihilation which that hell of annihilation which marks the victory of modern vessels of class over vessels of inferiority, cannot fail to convey its impression of horror and gloom to the serious reader of the hour's news; the story of perforated and shattered hulks carrying down to death thousands of human beings, of men as we are, husbands, fathers, brothers. It is the human tragedy which is the human tragedy which bears in upon us past all other impressions. A fight at sea with its burning and sinking of ves. sels presents the most terrible of all war tragedies to the imagination. The killing of a like number of men in a land engagement would not so affect us.

We cannot but confess to ourselves, however, that a reversal of the story would have been a sadder version for this country. Had the disaster, deaths and defeat been Togo's and Japan's, America would almost have had the blues, so generally do our sympathies lie that way. Sorry for the loser though we may be, the world loves a victor as it does a lover, and a Japanese victor at present a little better than it would love a Russian. Russia as now constituted does not appeal as one day it may to the world's sympathies; and Russia's position in the war, that of an aggressor inspired by motives not much better than sheer greed of expansion, or, euphemistically, "t errit or ial aggrandizement." has not been the popular one. We cannot but confess to our has not been the popular one. Japan's valiant defense, Japan's littleness against Russia's big-ness, have moved the cheers.

One of the vast reportorial and literary activity which the big naval engagement has inspired has come, among others, a splendid phrase descriptive of the event—"the hornets attacking the leviathans of the deep." It must have been a hornet fight against a sluggish foe, seeing that Togo's fleet came off almost unscratched. It recalls the China-Jap engagements, the first of na-Jap engagements, the first of modern naval warfare, and the American victories over the Spanish Admirals. In point of tonage involved, and probably as to the volume and weight of projectiles thrown, it is the greatest sea fight in history, and of vast interest to naval experts.

Consideration of the decisive and sweening victory leads inev.

interest to naval experts.

Consideration of the decisive and sweeping victory leads inevitably to the query. Will it end the war? Japan appears to be left without opposition on water. On land she has the enemy on the defensive. Japan's control of both situations would appear to be nearly perfect and nothing Russia can do inside of many months could disturb it. Japan has fairly earned peace at the terms she has contended for. As for Russia, what can she do but yield? It remains to be seen what effect the disaster has on the feelings of the discouraged Russian people. Internal Russia may, and probably will, be a factor pressing compellingly for peace. Russia is "out of peace. Russia is "out of peace Russian people. Internal Russia may, and probably will, be a factor pressing compellingly for peace. Senator Pettus, the veteran statesman from Alabama, is an imitable teller of darky stories, and among his collection perhaps the following is of the best:

"One day a farmer in my State while in his barn observed his dog rush out and begin to bark furiously at a darky from a neighboring farm. The colored man at once took to his heels, at though he had come to the barn on a matter of more or less importance. Some time later he returned, and, making sure that no dog was about, entered the barn. "Why were you so frightened. Sam?" asked the farmer. Than wouldn't have harmed you. Remember the old saying, "barking dogs never bite.""

"Ont's all right, sah, 'responded the darky with much gravity, you know dat an't know dat; but when do either of us know when dat confounded dog is agoin' to stop barkin.""

His Fleets Have Achieved the Greatest Victories

Been Pitted With a Foe-A Sketch of His Career.

Admiral Togo occupies the cen-ter of the stage to-day. He is the man of the hour. Since February 8, 1904, he has command-ed the Japanese fleets which have effected the greatest things ever done by any modern squadrons of war. He has wiped the great Rüssian navy off the face of the severn seas. He has reduced the rn seas. He has reduced the navy of modern maritime man vels controlling the prize seas and harbors of the Baltic and the far East to two miserable clumps of

He was w it h the first flying squadron sent to Chi-na in that war. He fell in with a transport w it h a British Captain and crew and captured her.
The Chinese officers aboard attempted to escape, and a f t e r waiting 20 minutes in which to give the Americans and English an opportunity to leave the ship, Togo raised the red flag, a signal that he intended firing. Then he torpedoed the vessel. It was the first fight of the war. Togo distinguished himself at the battle of the Yula, and was promoted to be a Rear Admiral and given the third command in JORDAN PEACOCK stands at the head of all combined horses as a show horse and has sired more high priced horses and out of common mares, than any living horse. His colts are always winners in the best fairs in Kentucky and Tennessee and have sold as high as $2,000 at 4-years-old. JORDAN PEACOCK has defeated more good show horses than any other Stallion in Kentucky. Now if you want to raise horses that have a National reputation and that will bring more money than any others, bring your mares and breed to JORDAN. He is the surest foal getter in Kentucky. When you breed to him you are sure to get a colt and a good one.

The fat or lard hog is such because corn has been his principal feed and because there has been a demand for pork from such a hog, and he will conform to the present prevailing type just as long as corn remains his principal feed.

Butcher hogs are the best hogs from the fat or lard hog standpoint that come to market, and should be used as a standard for comparison.

From the bacon market standpoint the English bacon hog is the ideal toward which hogs are being developed. LIFE INSURANCE.

On the 1st of March, 1904. The Connecticut Mutual reached a stage in its history very interesting to its management and its members, and one which is unique in the history of American Life Insurance.

On that date, less than fifty-eight years from the date of its organization, it had received from members in premiums 282.8,376.288, and had returned to them or their beneficiaries $228,724,043, i. e., $347.805 more than it had received from them. On Dec. 31, 1904, this excess amounted to $1,594,224.65.

The Conecticut Mutual is the first and only American Insurance Co., which has returned to its members and beneficiaries ONE HUNDRED PER CENT. of its receipts from them, and, in addition thereto, has accumulated for the protection of its outstanding contracts, including a surplus of $4,828,699.64, assets of over $65,000,000.
